General information on the new format of the module descriptions

The module handbook contains both the assignments of the modules to the respective areas for enrolled students up to SoSe 2024 and for enrolled students from WiSe 2024/2025 onwards. Please refer to the respective table of contents.

Please consider that the specification of the respective module-specific pre-examination requirement(s) or the continuous module-related assessment(s) takes place during the course. The specification could include an obligation to pass individual continuous module-related assessments, and as well as a percentage weighting of the continuous module-related assessments regarding the calculation of the final module grade.

According to § 23 "Withdrawal from a module examination", in particular para. 1 ASPO, the following applies: "Students may withdraw from a module examination for which they have registered without providing a reason by no later than three calendar days before the respective first examination date usually in electronic form via the web portal of the university." If examinations are already taking place during the semester, you will find the date of the start of the first course-related examination in the module description, e.g. topic issue. If no date is specified, withdrawal is possible up to three calendar days before the examination date in the semester-specific examination period or before the end of the semester.

Please note that changes to the module handbook for winter semester 2024/2025 are possible until 30 October 2024. Until then, this is only a provisional version.

Legally binding information on the respective assignments and the start date of the first course-related examination is provided by the so-called course list, which will be finally adopted by the Faculty Council of the Faculty of Economics and Management (FEM) on Wednesday, 6 November 2024.

This course list can be found on the faculty website under the following link:

- 1) Instead of the scientific project, further seminar work amounting to at least 10 CP can also be completed. In this case, a further 5 CP module in the area of specialization must be completed.
- 2) Instead of the modules in the area of supplements, further modules can be completed in the area of specialization, depending on what is offered.
- 3) One module of the area of supplements amounting to 5 CP can be taken in the area "CoMeT – Competencies and Methods Training".
- 4) Up to 10 CP can be credited for the language proficiency test in German at least at B2 level, for the UNiCert III or IV language proficiency test in English, or for a language proficiency test in another foreign language.

The Study-ABC (IV)

- Seminars [§ 9 para. 4 SER]:
  - “Seminars are used for teachers and students to scientifically appraise theoretical and practical issues collaboratively. This can be in a variety of different ways of working (provision of information, presentations, development of theses, discussions) and in groups, whilst ensuring that each student’s individual performance is assessed. Seminars generally require collaboration by the students, at least in the form of presentations in accordance with § 14 para. 9 [SER] and term papers in accordance with § 14 para. 7 [SER].”

The Study-ABC (V)

- Scientific Projects [§9 para. 5 SER]
  - Scientific projects help the students to demonstrate that they are capable of working independently. Depending on the stipulations of the module, the project is either worked on individually or in teams (team/group project with individual assessment).

Important regulations & notes (1)

- §8 para. 1 PSSER regulates:
- The degree program is divided into a compulsory area with 15 CP, a compulsory elective area with 75 CP and the compulsory module "Master's thesis" (30 CP). The compulsory modules take place exclusively in the semester listed in Appendix 1. The final module examinations can be taken in any semester.
- In compulsory elective modules, 75 CP must be obtained. Of these
  - 5 CP in the area of "Scientific work" and
  - at least 55 CP in the area of specialization, whereby
    - at least 10 CP must be obtained through seminar work and exactly one scientific project amounting to 15 CP
  - or
  - at least 20 CP must be obtained through seminar work.

Important regulations & notes (2)

- In the supplementary area, a maximum of 15 ECTS credits can be earned.

This includes:

- choosing modules from the course offerings specified for this study program, or
- earning 5 ECTS credits in the area of "CoMeT – Competencies and Methods Training." or
- to support entry into relevant professional fields as per § 2 (9), up to 10 ECTS credits in the supplementary area can be credited for language proficiency exams in German at least at the B2 level, for UNIcert III or IV in English, or for a language proficiency exam in another foreign language.

Important regulations & notes (3)

- §8 para. 5+6 SER regulate:
- Each semester, before the start of the respective examination registration period (key term: course list) the Faculty Council will decide upon the allocation of the modules to the area of specialization and on the specific compulsory elective areas of the respective study program.
- Furthermore, on application to the board of examiners, relevant modules from the range of courses offered by other faculties may be assigned to the compulsory elective and elective areas.
- Publication of the assignments (binding) in the so-called course list
- changes to the course list possible on both sides until 30.10.2024
